

Week 13 introduction Transcript

(Thunder)

Ok, well this week we are changing gears again. This time we are talking about sports photography. What it takes to get that really great sports picture, one where peak action is right on top of it. You see it in Sports Illustrated, newspapers and magazines, television. There is nothing that quite compares to that still image of a great sports activity at the peak moment. Nothing quite surpasses it.

But also in sports there is the other side. The emotional content, I call it the emotional battlefield, where not only do you have the action on the field or court or whatever it might be but you also have the emotional content on the sidelines. The heroics, the winners and the losers and all the emotions that goes with it.

Take a look at these videos and stuff I have for you and I hope you will see sports photography in a little different light than you have before, than just....keeping your eye on the ball.
